COVID-19 Solidarity Program in the Eastern Partnership countries

A Comprehensive Response to COVID-19 Emergencies Threatening Civil Society Organizations in Eastern Partnership countries

About the Program

AFEW International has launched in September 2020 the regional “COVID-19 Solidarity Program in the Eastern Partnership countries” with the financial support of the European Union. This project will support community-based organizations (CBOs) to respond to the immediate and longer-term impact of the COVID-19 pandemic in the Eastern Partnership countries. AFEW International together with the Netherlands Helsinki Committee is part of the consortium led by People in Need. The consortium has the goal of enhancing the capacities of CBOs to effectively respond to short- and medium-term needs and influence longer-term policy reforms that support vulnerable groups and those disproportionately affected by the COVID-19 pandemic.

More than a year after the start of the pandemic, the world is enduring a challenging spring. COVID-19 infections, hospitalizations and deaths are rising in many countries as the continent grapples with a more infectious variant, a shortage of vaccines and public weariness and lockdowns. The latest pandemic surge triggered by the spread of various variants of the virus is often called a “third wave”. COVID-19 is still a moving target: it’s a new virus, much is still unknown about its epidemiology, spread, and risk factors.

Countries from the Eastern Partnership host many large factories where remote work has not been possible, and this time round, governments have been reluctant to quickly impose a lockdown, fearing another blow to the economies after last year’s recession.

COVID-19 as a disease may have consequences linked to its pathophysiology for those with a health condition such as people living with HIV (PLWH), people with (history of) tuberculosis or with viral hepatitis, or other health conditions. The impact of COVID-19 on their individual medical condition is not likely to be different in Eastern Europe and Central Asia (EECA) than elsewhere in the world. However, the epidemiology of some of the risk factors in EECA is such, that they are likely to have a substantial impact on certain populations, e.g., because of the relatively high burden of tuberculosis, especially drug-resistance TB.

Marginalized groups of people, including Key Populations have poor access to health services, in particular in the Eastern Partnership countries. Hence, it is commonly believed that marginalized groups are more likely to also have hindered access to COVID-19 related services. This can be influenced also by the stigma and discrimination

Since March 2020, it has been clear that CBOs in the Eastern Partnership countries have been struggling to adapt to the new COVID-work environment with extreme limits in movement, reduction of interaction with target beneficiaries and the transition to online/remote management and mobilization. COVID-19 Solidarity Program in Eastern Partnerships countries strives to address these challenges by providing support to CBOs in order to adapt and manage these changes. It is necessary to support local CBOs adapting to the COVID work environment to both respond to the COVID-related socio-economic needs and continue their regular support to the Key Populations. AFEW International seeks to provide small grants to CBOs working with Key Populations on immediate material needs arising from COVID-19 related measures, such as PPE and IT/communication equipment.

Eligible costs

The Call aims to support CBOs that have been struggling to adapt to the new COVID-work environment with extreme limits in movement, reduction of interaction with target beneficiaries and the transition to online/remote management and mobilization. To address these challenges, AFEW International will provide support to CBOs in order to adapt and manage these changes.

- Purchase of equipment for meetings and office rooms to facilitate distance/remote work;
- Purchase of IT equipment to be able to facilitate communication with the clients;
- Purchase of COVID-19 personal protection materials (masks, gloves, sanitizers, soap) for organizational and clients use;
- Purchase of other sanitary equipment and materials for use in the office and/or when meeting clients on outcalls.

Please note: If the applicant expresses the necessity to purchase other material needs, when submitting the proposal rationale must be provided.

Funding available

In order to reach the overall goal, AFEW International aims at supporting multiple organizations from the Eastern Partnership countries¹ with small grants. The maximum amount per grant is € 3.500.

Assessment of Applications

Call for application to promote the COVID-19 Solidarity Program for the Eastern Partnership countries is distributed on AFEW International's channels and through associated partners in the region.

Applications meeting the eligibility criteria will be scored based on the selection criteria. Applications will be assessed after the deadline (30 April 2021 at 17:00 CET (Amsterdam time)). Decisions will be made within 3 weeks. We aim to initiate transfer of the funds within 14 days after a positive decision.

- Projects address the immediate COVID-19 impact towards the new work environment as to enable CBOs to continue supporting their usual constituents.
- Activities respond to a situation that threatens the health, and/or the physical or juridical safety of one or more people from the above target groups or threatens the financial and/or legal situation of an NGO/CBO.
- The activities to relieve an emergency will be immediately implemented and will last no longer than 6 months.
- The proposal is submitted in English or Russian.
- The proposal is submitted through the provided email before the deadline.

Organizational information is collected with care and delicacy. Information will be stored in a secured database.

Selection Criteria for Emergency Grants

After an application is found to be eligible, the application will be assessed by the Operational Team based on the selection criteria for COVID-19 Emergency Grants.

Selection criteria

1. Clear analysis on the material needs of CBOs related to COVID-19. The situation is qualified as emergent according to provided background information.
2. There's a good plan for provision of COVID-19 related materials for CBOs to counter effects of COVID-19. Relevance of proposed activities: Are the proposed activities in the given context relevant for solving the emergency situation?
3. Budget is clear and reasonable and the demonstrated need for items is clearly indicated, and is within the limit of 3.500 EUR.
4. Capacity to implement the proposed activities. Does the applicant have sufficient capacity to implement proposed activities?

Each criterion is scored from 1 to 5. Only applications with an average score higher than 3.5 will be considered for funding.

Reviewing the applications, we will keep the following in mind:

- We will prioritize activities which are not (easily) fundable through other means.
- We will prioritize smaller community based organizations that are carrying their work in smaller cities.
- In the portfolio of grants, we strive to have all mentioned key populations represented and all countries represented.

Selection Commission

AFEW International has established an internal selection committee consisting of three experts working with key population groups in Eastern Europe.

Due diligence

As part of selection process, the Operational Team may want to assess governance and accountability structures of the applicant, and may to that extent request from applicant additional information on organizational structures; (financial) management and leadership; demonstrated capacity to implement the proposed activities (track record); funding history or recommendation letters (where available); and the meaningful involvement of key populations. This is to ensure that a sufficient level of organizational capacity is guaranteed. For selected grantees, a short organizational assessment will be conducted.
